

1. System Overview

Fruit mStore is a compact web-based e-commerce application designed to streamline the sales process for a local fresh produce retailer. Built using the MERN stack (MongoDB, Express.js, React.js, Node.js), the system transitions the shop from a manual, paper-based workflow to an efficient digital platform. It allows the shop owner (Admin) to manage the product catalogue securely while providing customers with a user-friendly interface to browse fruits, manage their shopping carts, and place orders. The application focuses on essential e-commerce functionalities, ensuring a structured, modular, and easy-to-navigate experience that fulfills the core requirements of digital order placement and checking out.

2. Application Workflow Summary

The application works through two distinct roles: Admin and Customer.

- For the Admin: The process begins with a secure login. Once authenticated, the admin can access a protected "Add Product" interface to list new fruits with details like name, price (in PKR), stock, and images, ensuring the catalogue is always up-to-date.
- For the Customer: Users can browse the main product listing page to view all available fruits. They can "Add to Cart" any items they wish to purchase. The "Cart" page allows them to adjust quantities or remove items. When ready, they proceed to "Checkout," where they enter their personal contact details. The system dynamically adjusts requirements based on the Delivery method: if "Home Delivery" is chosen, an address is required; if "Pickup" is chosen, a confirmation note is shown instead. Finally, the user selects a payment method and confirms the order, which is then saved to the database.

3. ERD

The database is designed around five core entities to ensure data integrity and structured relationships:

- Users: This table stores all user credentials, differentiating between 'admin' and 'customer' roles to control access levels.

- Products: This entity holds all product-related data (name, price, stock, image). It is linked to the Users table (specifically the Admin) to track who added the inventory.
- Carts: This represents the temporary state of a customer's shopping session. It is linked to the Users table to persist the shopping items for a specific customer.
- Orders: This is the central entity for finalized transactions. It records the total amount, payment method, and delivery details. It is linked to Users so customers can view their history.
- Order_Items: Depending on the specific normalization level, this logically connects Orders and Products, detailing exactly which products were bought in a specific order, including quantity and price at the time of purchase.

4. Payment Flow

The payment process is designed to be a mock simulation of a real-world checkout. Once a customer reaches the final step of the checkout form, they are presented with two options. If "Cash on Delivery" is selected, the order is immediately confirmed with a "Pending" payment status. If "Card Payment" is selected, the system displays a simulated card input form where the user enters their card details (Number, Holder Name, Expiry, CVV). These details undergo a dummy validation check to ensure the format is correct. No actual funds are deducted; instead, the system records the payment method as "Card" and saves the order as "Completed," providing the user with an instant order success confirmation.
